Fitzwilliam, Feb. 27, 1892.

REPORT OF SCHOOL BOARD.

The school board of Fitzwilliam present the following report for the year ending March 1, 1892:

We wish to thank the people for the kind and considerate treatment we have received, and the willingness, when our plans have been understood, with which they have helped carry them out.

No previous year has the average rank of our schools been higher, or our children had the advantage of more weeks of school.

Many of our schools have been excellent, but where is the school found, which by careful and pains-taking effort on the part of parents, children and teacher, cannot be improved. Let us not be satisfied with this year's success but set our standard higher and higher each term.

No. 1 last year did not receive its full share of school privileges. This year it had twenty-five weeks, with the opportunity for more; after fifteen weeks of fall school, satisfactory to parents and scholars, it was thought by them enough.

No spring term was opened in No. 4, but in the fall there were thirteen scholars, and after thirteen weeks sickness made it seem best to close with the hope that another year we might give them better advantages.

In No. 10 teacher and parents agreed that it was better not to prolong the fall term beyond ten weeks. We wish here to notice the disposition of the young people of this part of the town to avail themselves of the advantages offered in the grammar school, and would say to them, take every chance offered for an education, and we predict for you a position in life much above the average.

We regret to report so many absences, and the tardiness in a few schools is a disgrace.

Sickness has been the cause of absence in many cases.

A mistaken idea seems to prevail in some localities that more disgrace attends a tardy than an absent mark.

If it is impossible to be present at the commencement of the session and is possible to be in time to commit lessons and recite, is it not better to keep with the class?

Absences affect not only the absent ones but all in their class.

Would a workman lose half a day's wages because he was five minutes late, if he was permitted to work? We think not. Scholars are laborers who cannot afford to lose time.

We urge the parents to see to it that their children attend punctually and regularly. Do not permit them to absent themselves for trifling causes. Do not keep your children at home from one day to two weeks after the term commences before they are ready for school, this practice is an injury to the whole school.

We hope every parent and guardian will see that their children are in school the first day of the first term and every term.

We all wish for the best good of our children, and in every possible way to aid them to become physically, mentally and morally strong.

Would you have your boys physically strong? See to it that they do not while boys poison their blood and enfeeble their bodies by the use of tobacco, especially the dangerous cigarette. Some school boys have used them, was it your boy?

Would you have your son pure? Watch against impure and profane language.

Would you have him noble? Teach him to be governed by principle rather than inclination.

Fathers, would you have your children appreciate the advantages you are giving them, and in some instances the sacrifices you make to help them to obtain an education? Do not fail to have them see you in their school room at least once every term. It is a duty you owe your children and a responsibility you should not dare to evade.

It is a fact we would wish was not so, that among the visitors recorded in our registers for the year now ended are the names of but six of the fathers or guardians of the two hundred and fifty or more children enrolled, and of them we make honorable mention: Jonas Damon, Alfred Turner, W. E. Holman, Charles Wilson, Dea. Treat, D. Burbank. Who will swell this number next year?

We had thought to give the names of all scholars whose deportment had averaged ninety or more, but upon examination of registers we found some teachers had not marked deportment at all, others in different ways, but we were pleased to observe so many marked to denote good and excellent. We hope next year to have our teachers all use the same form and at the end of the year be able to give a grand roll of honorable deportment. Will you not encourage your children to strive for a place on that roll?

It has been our aim to expend the money entrusted to us as carefully as though it belonged to us personally, and as several terms have been shorter than we at first designed, we hope to use profitably more money next year.

We hope the town will raise a reasonable amount for repairs, as several houses need painting and improving in other ways.

If new desks are to be bought for No. 10 that item will have to be considered.

What care is required or what disposition shall be made of houses Nos. 2, 7 and 11.

Trusting in your generous appropriations for such needs, we leave these suggestions for your consideration.

ROSETTE M. BYAM.
MARY E. SPAULDING.
ELBRIDGE CUMMINGS.

Our library now numbers 4,008 volumes, an increase of 991 since March 1, 1891. The average circulation has been at the rate of 315 per month. We hope for a continuation of the annual appropriation of fifty dollars. We wish our library to be an important element in the intellectual life of our community, and that unseen forces may radiate from it in many directions. Books are no longer the unique property of the scholar. The use of them is the one side of learning on which we all claim an opinion, yet owned, read, written, or wholly laid aside in a busy life. The use of them, which each of us knows, is individual and personal. The newspaper is the library of the moment, the library is the newspaper of all time. We open a newspaper to learn what we are as a nation; we enter a library to learn what we were. The revelations of neither are altogether satisfactory. We object to the library because it does not tell enough of the past; often we object to the newspaper because it tells too much of the present. To us all, books have been teachers; to many of us, companions. A library, therefore, does not merely transmit the memory of the past, but it provides memory for the future. Books keep us from being a burden to ourselves, and help us to forget the perplexities of men and things; we would have them "gratify these longings, some to give pleasure, some to put knowledge and wisdom into our minds, and some to uplift our souls to nobler and purer endeavor. But to this talk of books there is no end; it is a broad sea, with a shore neither here nor there." Beware of the man of one book. Beware also of the man who can see no room for improvement. We belong to neither class, but believe in many books and constant advancement.
